What is Nihon Shokken's "Sales" about?

At Nihon Shokken, our interpretation of "sales" differs not only from other companies, but also from the general public's image of "sales". To us, "sales" plays an extremely important role in the company, and sales personnel will hold executive positions as well. In our Japan offices, we hire only university graduates with the potential to hold executive positions in future. We will be doing the same in our Singapore branch.

This is the biggest difference between us and other companies. We are looking for potential talent with the intention to commit to our company, who will be placed under Nihon Shokken group of companies' special training program and groomed to be the future leaders of the Singapore market.

----- Training Program -----

1. After joining our company, you will form a sales team with a senior for the duration of year, during which you will be taught the basics of sales operations.
2. You will be solely in charge of a particular market, and will be given the opportunity to demonstrate your capabilities.
3. If you produce good results, you will lead a team of subordinates to take charge of a wider sector (this includes clients who are major companies) and continue to expand the business.
